What is a Knock-Out Bill?

A Knock-Out Bill is an interest rate risk management tool for customers who have a variable rate bank bill facility with Westpac. A Knock-Out Bill can help you to protect yourself against unfavourable interest rate movements provided that a predetermined level is not reached.

A Knock-Out Bill is not a lending facility and can only be used in conjunction with a Westpac variable rate bank bill facility. It only affects the base interest rate applicable to your bank bill facility. It does not affect any acceptance or other fees and margins payable. Your bank bill facility will continue to be governed by the terms and conditions set out in your business finance agreement.

How does a Knock-Out Bill work?

Under a Knock-Out Bill, you agree to sell to Westpac a specified amount of bills of exchange drawn under your Westpac bank bill facility (bills) at a pre-agreed fixed contract rate on pre-determined dates (reset dates) provided the knock-out rate is not reached.

At the time you enter into a Knock-Out Bill, you nominate the amount of bills to be sold, and we agree the contract rate and knock-out rate. You also set a series of reset dates that match the scheduled roll over dates for your bills.

On each reset date, Westpac compares the knock-out rate with the prevailing Westpac bank bill drawdown rate (WBBD). The possible outcomes are:

- if the WBBD is lower than the knock-out rate, you will sell your bills to Westpac at the contract rate. Provided the knock-out level is not reached, your base interest rate is effectively fixed at the contract rate for the relevant period.
- if the WBBD is at or above the knock-out rate, the parties have no obligations under the Knock-Out Bill on that date. If this occurs, you would not sell, and Westpac would not purchase, any bills on that reset date under your Knock-Out Bill. If the knock out rate is reached, you lose the interest rate protection provided by the Knock-Out Bill for the relevant period.

Are there any Westpac credit requirements before dealing?

Before entering into a Knock-Out Bill, Westpac will assess your financial position to determine whether or not your situation satisfies our normal credit requirements. This assessment is to determine your creditworthiness: we do not consider the suitability of this product for you as part of this process. Westpac will advise you of the outcome of its review as soon as possible.

If your application is successful, you will need to sign Westpac's standard finance documentation. This documentation sets out the terms of the credit approval and other matters relevant to your application.

What are the costs?

Westpac sets the contract rate and the knock-out rate at particular levels in order to create a zero cost structure. This results in no up-front out of pocket costs payable by you.

When determining the contract rate and knock-out rate, Westpac takes several factors into account including:

- the size and term of the Knock-Out Bill
- market interest rates, and
- market volatility.

While the transaction is structured on a zero cost basis, Westpac still derives a financial benefit. Westpac obtains that benefit by incorporating a margin into the contract rate and knock-out rate. In effect, you pay for the Knock-Out Bill by accepting the contract rate and the knock-out rate quoted by Westpac.

What are the significant benefits of a Knock-Out Bill?

- Knock-Out Bills provide you with protection against unfavourable interest rate movements provided the knock-out rate is not reached.
- Because of the knock-out component, the contract rate is likely to be better than the fixed rate bill rate available at the time you enter the Knock-Out Bill.
- Knock-Out Bills are flexible. They can be tailored to meet your individual needs.

What are the significant disadvantages of a Knock-Out Bill?

- Unless the knock-out rate is reached, you are obliged to sell your bills at the contract rate. It may be that this rate is higher than the prevailing WBBB.
- If the knock-out rate is reached, you lose the interest rate protection provided by the Knock-Out Bill for the relevant period.
- While Knock-Out Bills can be cancelled, there may be a cost to you in doing so – see “Can I terminate a Knock-Out Bill before maturity?” for further details.

What are the significant risks of a Knock-Out Bill?

As is the case with most financial markets products we enter into, we have performance obligations under a Knock-Out Bill. If we are unable to perform our obligations under your Knock-Out Bill, you would be exposed to market fluctuations as if you had not entered into a Knock-Out Bill.

Our ability to fulfil our obligations is linked to our financial wellbeing and to the effectiveness of our internal systems, processes and procedures. The first type of risk (our financial wellbeing) is commonly referred to as credit or counterparty risk. The second type of risk (the effectiveness of our internal systems, processes and procedures) is commonly referred to as operational risk.

You must make your own assessment of our ability to meet our obligations. However, as a regulated Australian bank we are subject to prudential regulation which is intended to reduce the risk of us failing to perform our obligations.

What happens on a Reset Date?

On each reset date:

- if the WBBB has not reached the knock-out rate, you must sell your bills to Westpac at the contract rate;
- if the WBBB is at or above the knock-out rate, you have no obligation to sell bills to us and we have no obligation to buy them from you.

Can I terminate a Knock-Out Bill before maturity?

You may ask us to terminate your Knock-Out Bill at any time up to maturity. We will then provide you with a quote for cancelling the Knock-Out Bill.

What will be the value of the Knock-Out Bill on early termination?

Our quote will incorporate the same variables (the contract rate, knock-out rate, amount and term) used when pricing the original Knock-Out Bill. These will be adjusted for the prevailing market rates over the remaining term of the Knock-Out Bill. We will also need to consider the cost of reversing or offsetting your original transaction. When doing this we take into account the current market rates that apply to any offsetting transactions.

What happens if I accept?

If you accept the quote, we will cancel the Knock-Out Bill. You should appreciate that there may be a cost to you if you terminate early.

What documentation is required?

The commercial terms of a particular Knock-Out Bill are agreed verbally over the phone. Once we reach an agreement, both you and Westpac are bound by those terms. You will also be bound by the terms set out in this PDS and in the confirmation that will be sent to you shortly after entering into the Knock-Out Bill. That confirmation will include the commercial terms as well as other general terms and conditions, and will be in substantially the same form as the one attached to this document. We strongly suggest you fully consider the attached confirmation before entering into any transaction.

What about confirmations?

Shortly after entering into a Knock-Out Bill, Westpac will send you a confirmation outlining the commercial terms of the transaction. You will need to sign this confirmation and return it to Westpac.

It is extremely important that you check the confirmation to make sure it accurately records the terms of the transaction. If there is a discrepancy between your understanding and the confirmation, you will need to raise it with your Westpac representative as a matter of urgency.

Example

The example below is indicative only and uses rates and figures selected to demonstrate how the product works. To assess the merits of any particular Knock-Out Bill, you need to use the actual rates and figures quoted to you at that time. The interest rates used below are percentage per annum rates

Scenario

You are a borrower with a $1,000,000 Westpac bank bill facility with a term of three years, with quarterly drawdowns referencing the 90-day WBBB. If you did nothing, the interest rate of your bank bill for each quarter will be the prevailing WBBB.

You think that interest rates are likely to go up and have a view on how much they are likely to rise. You wish to obtain some protection against interest rate rises and would like to achieve a better rate than the current fixed rate bank bill rate.

How will a Knock-Out Bill work?

Assume you enter into a 3 year quarterly Knock-Out Bill with a contract rate of 6.25%, a knock-out rate of 7% and quarterly reset dates. The amount of bills covered by the Knock-Out Bill is $1,000,000. The current 3 year fixed rate bank bill rate is 6.5%.

If, on any reset date, the WBBB is below the 7% knock-out rate, you would sell your bills to Westpac at the contract rate. Your base interest rate is effectively fixed at the contract rate for that period.

If, on any reset date, the WBBB is at or above the 7% knock-out rate, the contract is "knocked-out" for this period and you have no obligation to sell, and we have no obligation to buy, bills. You effectively lose the interest rate protection for this period. Your effective base interest rate remains at the WBBB.

Taxation

Taxation law is complex and its application to this product will depend on your particular circumstances. We make no claim that this product will provide a beneficial or appropriate tax outcome for you. Telephone conversations

The terms of a Knock-Out Bill are agreed verbally over the telephone. Once we have reached an agreement, both you and Westpac are bound by the terms of the Knock-Out Bill.

Conversations with our dealing room and settlement departments are taped. This is standard market practice. We do this to make sure that we have complete records of the details of all transactions. Taped conversations are retained for a limited period and are usually used where there is a dispute and for staff training and monitoring purposes.

You will need to advise our dealer if you do not wish to be recorded. However, we will not enter into any transaction over the telephone unless the conversation is recorded.
